

VENUS TRANSIT 2012

6 JUNE 2012, 05:25-07:00 CEST
MONTMARTRE – PARIS

A cover(ed) story in twelve images

5:15 CEST: Looking out of the window: dark & dramatic, but – a ray of hope!

(some hope about here)

5:22 CEST: On the street – morning breeze, no cars, another poor pedestrian– astronomer?

5:25 CEST: Waiting for the very first metro. T minus 24 minutes until sunrise!

5:39 CEST: 50km/h direction Montmartre – and me as the lonely passenger.

VENUS TRANSIT 2012

6 JUNE 2012, 6:10^{CEST}
MONTMARTRE -

6:00 CEST: Stairways to heaven...

6:10 CEST: We are all here: Venus, the clouds and I. Now or never (again).

VENUS TRANSIT 2012

6 JUNE 2012, 6:10^{CEST}
MONTMARTRE -
PARIS

6:16 CEST: Upstairs, total excitement – isn't something glowing over there? Could it be...?

6:19 CEST: the Venus transit happens HERE and NOW – mind excited, image out of focus.

6:30 CEST: Tired, without Venus, without WLAN, but with an astronomy magazine and style...

6:50 CEST: End of the transit – The random 6 (Paris, Brazil, USA, Austria)

8:25 CEST: A mockery: sunshine. Venus behind one of the green leaves.

